

About

Next Level Services was formed with the intent of adding value to others. With a greater and greater need for digital resources in today's market, we desire to come alongside businesses and ministries in order to help them reach the next level.

Alex J. Moore, Chief Strategist

Hi, my name is Alex! My day job for the past ten years has been serving alongside my Dad as he pastors New Life Community Church in Kansas City, Missouri. As an “assistant” and now “associate” pastor, my goal has been to make my father a success. As a result, it's been necessary over the years for me to embrace a number of responsibilities in which I had little or no expertise. From groundskeeper, to janitor, to worship leader, to learning to play an instrument, to building a church website, overseeing our audio/visual department, to administering various aspects of the office...I've truly had a hands-on learning experience! While I hold a Bachelor of Theology, what I've learned through necessity has become one of my greatest contributions. My skills in graphic design, website development, writing, administration, and print piece design led me to also working as the Assistant Director for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes in Kansas City from 2013-2015.

My heart's desire is to “add value to others” through freelance work, virtual assistance, or physically sitting down and working with you. Hopefully, what comes easy to me will be a relief and blessing to you!
